Serving Long Island.

Construction

Advances in factory built housing technology significantly reduce the uncertainty of building onsite and allows families to construct custom, high quality homes and additions in a fraction of the time common with on site labor.

High quality results come from factory quality control. Materials are protected from theft and weather related damage, and the factory maintains control over inventory. The factory buys in huge quantities gaining volume discounts on materials that a local contractor can not match.

Factory inspections are done at every phase of manufacture. Components are precisely assembled and units leave the factory 80-90% complete.

Relationships

If you need to choose an architect, lender or other professional you can count on us to help you choose the right one. If you have existing relationships in these areas then we'll be happy to work with them to ensure your total satisfaction.
